

Name: Paul Sedway
Organization: Public
Date Received: August 20, 2009

Subject: Comment

It is patently absurd to address greenhouse gas emissions using the case-by-case approach institutionalized in CEQA. Every project no matter how small, and every activity, contributes greenhouse gases. Rather, the government should use its resources to undertake adequate research, establish reasonable and sound benchmarks, and impose whatever restrictions, and other actions, are needed.

Paul H. Sedway FAICP