Watersheds Coalition of Ventura County

The Watersheds Coalition of Ventura County is the governing body of the IRWM region. It includes six committees – general membership, the steering committee, the Disadvantaged Community sub-committee, and three watershed committees (Calleguas Creek, Lower Santa Clara River, Ventura River). Individual members of various bands of the Chumash Tribe and Wishtoyo Foundation are identified as stakeholders with some level of participation. Local Tribal contacts from the Chumas, Barbareno, and Venturenno Tribes (provided by the NAHC) have been included in outreach throughout the IRWM process.

Greater Los Angeles County

The Greater Los Angeles County region is governed by its Leadership Committee, consisting of subregional representatives and water management focus area representatives. Additionally, there are Leadership Committee Subcommittees and Subregional Steering Committees. Most stakeholder input is conducted through the Subregional Steering Committees, representing the North Santa Monica Bay, Upper Los Angeles River, South Bay, Upper San Gabriel River/Rio Hondo, and Lower San Gabriel/Lower Los Angeles Rivers subregions.

Upper Santa Clara River

The Upper Santa Clara River region is governed by a RWMG that works with subcommittees, and a stakeholder group on IRWM planning and processes. The Tataviam Band of Mission Indians has been involved with stakeholder meetings, according to the 2014 Plan. The 2018 Plan Update referenced outreach to other Tribal interests identified by the NAHC.
